

Advisory Team on Government Policies and Practices Summary Report

September 2020 – November 2022

The Policy and Practice Project’s purpose was to identify and improve local government policies and practices that negatively affect some residents, especially residents of color, so government would work better for everyone. The project started in the summer of 2020 and aligned with the City’s mission to help Red Wing become a more sustainable, healthy, accessible, resilient, and equitable community where every person feels at home.

The project followed through on goals set forth in three key City plans: the Red Wing 2040 Community Plan, the City’s 10-Year Strategic Plan, and Red Wing’s Racial Equity Plan.

From the project’s beginning, the City of Red Wing acknowledged that implicit bias exists in policies and practices throughout society, including at every level of government. Minnesota has one of the country’s largest quality-of-life disparities between white residents and residents of color, and eliminating those disparities requires an understanding and focus on systems, policies, and daily practices.

Background

In the summer of 2020, City Council met to discuss what it would do to address racial disparities spotlighted by the murder of George Floyd and the Covid-19 pandemic. One of the Council’s priorities was to form a community group that would identify the inequitable differences in how people experience life in Red Wing and give insights into how local government could change its own policies and practices to lessen those disparities and make our community a better place for everyone to live.

Residents attended multiple City Council meetings to give ideas and feedback into this idea, and in July, the approach of a 12-member Advisory Team on Government Policies and Practices was created. The team would consist of people of varying ages, races, ethnicities, and backgrounds, and the project would value life experiences and open dialogue.

Nomination forms for Advisory Team members went out to the community in late summer, and the City received nominations for 60 people, with 84 nomination forms in total (some people were nominated more than once). The Council, Mayor, and a resident-led selection committee each had a part in choosing the team. For details on this process, visit <http://www.red-wing.org/DocumentCenter/View/4023/Selection-Process-of-Team-Members-PDF>.

Criteria for team members included the following:

- Person offers a unique perspective.
- Person listens, identifies as, understands, or works with an under-represented group.
- Person has valued skill(s) that will be helpful in this team.
- Person has shown they want to work as a team that can have a range of differing opinions.
- Person has not been very involved in the past with government bodies.
- Person helps create a diverse group of people as a whole

The Work

The team met for 26 meetings over a period of 27 months, starting in early September 2020. Meetings were mostly monthly – the second Wednesday of each month – and were for two hours from 6:00 to 8:00 p.m. Meetings were held virtually for many months, then were held in person in the Community Development Building. The team began by meeting with the police department online for the first 4 months, then eventually met with every department in the City and the City’s housing partners. For each topic and department, team members learned about the City department and its role and duties, talked about life experiences as they related to that department, considered new ideas and best practices, and offered suggestions and recommendations for change.

People who would like to review the Advisory Team agendas, materials, summary notes, and recordings can visit <http://www.red-wing.org/1032/Policy-and-Practice-Project-Meetings>. This website page has been available to the public throughout the project’s tenure so people could consistently follow the team’s topics and discussions. More than 130 pages of summary notes encapsulate the meetings.

The Recommendations

The chart on the following pages is a summary of all the team’s recommendations over the course of the entire project. The Advisory Team presented recommendations to City Council three times since this project started, and since that time, the team has made many more. The comprehensive recommendation chart in this report is categorized alphabetically by City department, based on which department would be most responsible for implementing each suggestion. At the end is a section specifically for City Council.

The chart also notes if or how the City has progressed so far and where the City is in the process. A highlighted bar identifies which recommendations the Advisory Team rates as a very high priority at this time.

The City has already utilized some of the team’s recommendations. In November 2021, City Council approved the City’s 2022 Strategic Racial Equity Action Plan, which included many of the Advisory Team’s early recommendations, and City staff has been working to implement those ideas. Additional Advisory Team recommendations will be included in the 2023-2025 Red Wing Equity Plan, which will be brought before City Council at the end of 2022.

Highest Priorities

Now in late 2022, at the end of this Advisory Team’s tenure, the group has raised these actions as its top priorities for the City to improve in 2023.

- Expand language accessibility for residents, especially in Spanish, in every department.
- Increase police officer presence in parks, neighborhoods, and streets to build relationships, which will improve community health and safety.
- Work with developers to create more affordable and supportive housing units by end of 2024.
- Continue to have City staff, boards, and commissions accountable to City Council on equity strategies and actions identified by each group.

- _____

What Now?

The first page of recommendations outlines how the Advisory Team recommends that the City continue to place high priority on equity in its plans, policies, and practices. Those suggestions are also listed here:

- A community group should come together in three years to review the Advisory Team’s recommendations, gauge the City’s progress on action items, and identify ways to continue moving equity work forward. This group would be independent of a board/commission, meet short-term, and provide a report of findings.

- City should conduct regular community surveys to help measure where residents feel equity improvements are being made and where more are still needed.
- City should continue updating its Equity Plan so it keeps equity a focus of City work. The Equity Plan will be a living document that changes over time.
- Every board and commission will continue to identify equity as part of its annual and 5-year plans and report back to City Council.
- Each City department will have equity goals as part of their work expectations, and department heads will be accountable for these in their annual reviews.

In Thanks

The City of Red Wing and the City Council humbly thank all the team members for their efforts. We are grateful for their honesty, dedication, and persistence. They have made our City better, more aware, and more purposeful in becoming a more equitable organization. The City still has work to do. Our goal is to make people's lives better in Red Wing, and this project has helped us take a big step forward.
